➤ Comprehensive description

With increasing competition among universities both internationally and nationally, strategic development of universities becomes ever more important. Yet, how do universities in Europe actually make strategy work? How are university strategies developed, which policies and instruments are used in implementation? How are support and acceptance organized, how are changes managed?

Topics include:

- Strategy development
- Strategic planning for professorial appointments
- Aligning different levels of strategy (university – department)
- Strategic quality management
- Monitoring of strategy implementation
- Modes of governance and participation in strategy development and implementation
- Management of strategic partnerships between universities.

➤ Target audience

The event brings together staff who is involved in developing and implementing strategy in the higher education sector in Europe: in university governance, central administration or faculties and departments.

➤ Expenses

Participants are expected to obtain Erasmus+ mobility grants from their home institution in order to cover travel, living and accommodation expenses.

TU Darmstadt will assist with booking accommodation and will offer special conditions.

➤ Registration deadline: 31 March 2017 (maximum number of participants 25)
